DIAL SYSTEM GOES IN EFFECT IN SEPT.

FIRST WILL CO. FAMILY CLOSES TENANT LOAN

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schultz and family of Mokena have the privilege of being the first family in Will County to close their loan and obtain title to their farm under the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Purchase Act, it is announced by M. C. Geuther, Farm Security Administration Supervisor at Joliet.

The Bankhead-Jones Tenant Purchase program provides for the making of 40 year, three percent loans to a limited number of farm tenant or laborers for the purchase of family-sized farms. This is the first year that the program has been in operation in Will County.

Purpose of the Tenant Purchase program is to enable a limited number of tenant or farm laborer families to purchase farms without having to advance the down payments necessarily required by normal credit agencies.

Some 95 applications were received in the county this year. On the basis of farm experience, available operating resources and similar factors, the loan recipients were chosen from among those who had applied. Investigation of applications and recommendation for approval was handled by a local Tenant Purchase Committee.

Members of this committee, appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture are: Byron Gaskill, Joliet; Christ Kohl, Mokena; Rinehard Koelling, Crete.

In addition to receiving money for purchase of a farm and repair of buildings, each of the approved applicants was assisted by the Farm Security Administration in laying out sound farm and home management plans.

"We feel that credit alone is not sufficient to assure success," said Mr. Geuther. "Wise soil management, accurate keeping of accounts, production and preservation of food, proper balance between crops and livestock and many other factors involved in sound management of the farm home are necessary."

While these loans are amortized on a 40 year, three percent basis, they may be paid off in full at any time after the first five years.

Poultry Man Buys 117 Acre Farm Near Marley

St. Louis, Mo., courthouse records show the transfer this week of a Will County farm purchased by Harold F. Jones, poultry farmer of Oak Lawn from the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. The 117-acre tract is located one mile east of Marley and will be used by Mr. Jones as additional farming land.

The purchase was made through J. C. Pigott of DeKalb, fieldman for the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, and J. Franklin Hedgecock of Joliet, secretary-treasurer of the Will County National Farm Loan Association.

Garden Club To Hold Luncheon

The Mokena Garden Club is giving a one o'clock luncheon and party at the St. Mary Hall in Mokena on April 9th.

The tables will be decorated in keeping with the spring season. Cards, bunco and accommodations for visiting or sewing will be provided. There will be prizes for each table. Funds to be used for civic work.

The Committee in charge are: Menu, Mrs. Mall, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Dunn.

Tables and prizes, Mrs. Rauch, Mrs. Yunker and Mrs. Schoop. Tickets have been sent to all garden club members and reservations must be in on or before the garden club meeting, Tuesday, April 2 at Mrs. Geuther's.

Tickets may be secured from any member or by calling 39W.

Frankfort Deputy Recovers Stolen Car

Last Friday, Deputy sheriff Wm. L. Knippel of Frankfort found an abandoned Ford car along Route 45 near the Klose farm northeast of Mokena. The car had been stolen by three boys from Miss Reese, a school teacher at Braceville. The car was turned over to the office of the sheriff of Will County.

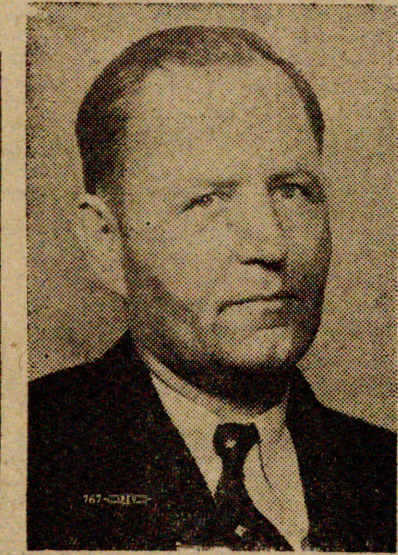

Green Coming To Mokena March 30

Dwight H. Green will be in Mokena Saturday, March 30 at 4:25 and will speak in front of the Cooper garage. He will leave at 4:45.

Elmer Brockman Busy In His Political Campaign

In making a canvass among leading Republicans both in Joliet and rural communities in the county, Elmer F. Brockman is considered by many voters as an outstanding candidate on the Republican ticket for Circuit Clerk.

Mr. Brockman has had the training and experience that qualifies him for the office he is seeking. His very definite promise if nominated and elected is to run an efficient and economical administration. This office is one where efficiency and experience will mean much for the benefit of those Will County citizens who must deal with this office from time to time. Mr. Brockman was born in Joliet on December 17, 1904, attended both the Joliet grade schools and Joliet Township High School. He is now 36 years of age and at present is employed at the United Wall Paper Mills.

While only a young man, Mr. Brockman has always taken an interest in the civic affairs of his community. He has been the kind of leader that has won him the respect and praise of his fellow men.

His campaign is being managed by his father, William C. Brockman, a seasoned campaigner. His popularity should be a big help to his son, say his adherents, in his endeavor to be nominated. The father, like the son, has always been a staunch Republican.

Green Brings New Type of Campaign To Illinois

(Political Advertisement) Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of governor of Illinois, has brought into state politics a type of campaigning that is altogether too infrequent.

Green promises to use the office of governor, if elected, to promote the welfare of the state and its people. This is a promise often made by candidates, but too often forgotten after election, or repudiated under the excuse of emergency legislation. Green does not depend upon general promises to gain votes. He tells in plain language the reforms he will institute if Illinois voters elect him to office.

He is out-and-out for elimination of the 3 per cent sales tax on foods. He is for actual reduction of the cost of the state government. He declares himself for government of the state by the men who are elected for that purpose, as compared with dictation by party bosses and groups of axe-grinding politicians.

His own record as a fighter hoodlumism, gangsters and racketeers, when as district attorney he placed an important part in the elimination of Capone's criminal sway, places him definitely on the side of law and order, honest government, and fair treatment for every citizen, with special favors to none.

With all his pledges for honest and efficient government, he is not striving to influence votes by promises of things that can not be done, or that should not be done. The things that he does promise to do are things that are within the power of the governor to do—or to see that his subordinates do them. His influence will be felt in the adoption of legislation that will benefit the people at large, and benefit them fairly. He will not tolerate the evasion of law, nor neglect of duty on the part of those whose duty it is to enforce the law.

On subjects of controversial nature, matters that cannot be settled by any hard or fast rule, he frankly states that he will be guided by careful, thorough study and investigation, in which he will welcome the cooperation, assistance and advice of good citizens, and of public and private interests that are affected by proposed laws or regulations.

He talks mainly to the farmers of the state when he refuses to promise or attempt to provide some magic panacea that will cure all the Republican Rally In Mokena Mon. Nite

Plans have been completed for the Republican rally and meeting which will be held in the Hatch Hall in Mokena Monday evening, March 25th at 7:30 o'clock. This rally is sponsored by the Republican women of Frankfort township and is open to men and women.

The workers for this meeting desire to strongly urge all women to attend this meeting, as it is planned to organize or take the first steps in organizing a Republican Women's club of Frankfort Township. The workers ask each woman to please feel this is a patriotic activity to attend, as there is no other invitation being given.

All Republican candidates are invited and there will be many of them at this meeting where they will speak for three minutes concerning the office to which they aspire.

Hershey Coming To Joliet March 26

Harry B. Hershey, Democratic candidate for Governor and other candidates associated with him who are seeking nomination in the primary April 9th will address a meeting in Joliet at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday March 26.

Candidate's Parents Formerly of Mokena

The ancestors of Arthur C. Lueder, former Chicago postmaster and now Republican candidate for Auditor of public accounts, were former Mokena residents. Mr. Lueder's was Julia Brumund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dietrich Brumund of Mokena. His mother was married to Rev. Mr. Leuder who is still living at the age of 95 years. Mrs. Leuder died some years ago. The candidate mentioned is a cousin of Attorney Frank G. Brumund of Joliet.

Celebrate 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Subbert celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary at their home on Sunday. At six o'clock a dinner was served at one long table to 25 relatives. The table was centered with a mixed bouquet of flowers, a gift from the grandchildren. There also was a wedding cake.

This day also was the birthdays of Mrs. Elmer Bettenhausen and of Arthur Subbert.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bettenhausen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bettenhausen and family, Manhattan, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Subbert of Mt. Prospect, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Subbert and family of Peotone, Miss Adeline Subbert of Peoria, Miss Esther Rauch of Blue Island, Lester and Milton Subbert, Mrs. Anna Knater, Frankfort, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nieland, Mokena, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Subbert of Peotone and Wm. Nieland.

One daughter, Mrs. Wayne Morgan of Moline, Illinois was unable to be present.

direct's ills. With a background of farm, personal interest in the farmer's problems, he yet does not pose as a know-it-all who can tell off-hand just how each problem should be met. Instead, he makes this promise:

"I will confer with and be advised by the best minds of men who are personally, actively engaged in agriculture, in an honest effort to arrive at the proper solution of each of the many problems that face the agricultural interests in these complex days. I have great confidence in the straight thinking and the good judgment of the farmers themselves. They know best their own needs, and they have pretty good ideas of how these needs can be met, without working injustice upon other people and other industries."

Green has a reputation as a vote-getter that will make him a great asset to the Republican ticket. He meets people's issues fairly and squarely, and his promises to the voters will be followed by honest and fearless performance.

Sh-h a little bird says that at the close of the show there will be a whale of a surprise for all present. Be sure to attend and stick around and find out about the big surprise.

Mokena Immunizing Program April 3-24

The Mokena immunization program for children is offering this year to all school children and preschool children of this community protection against diphtheria.

The program is sponsored by the Mokena Civic Association in co-operation with the School Board, the Mokena PTA and the Will County Nursing Service. Inoculations will be given by Dr. E. J. MacMahon.

Two inoculations, three weeks apart, are required for protection.

The fee for the two inoculations will be one dollar. The entire project is a voluntary one, no one being compelled to take it. Those parents wishing to have their children given the protective inoculations and who are unable to pay the fee, should send a note to the school teacher, then arrangements will be made with the Mokena Civic Association.

Consent slips which the parents must sign requesting the inoculations may be obtained from the school teachers or at the Mokena State Bank. The treatments will be given at the Mokena public school the afternoons of April 3rd and 24th.

Plans have been completed by the Illinois Bell telephone company for replacing its central office switchboards in Frankfort, Mokena and New Lenox and converting all telephones in Frankfort, Mokena, New Lenox and vicinity to dial operation. The new equipment will be of the latest type developed by telephone engineers for communities of this size. It is known as "Community Dial" equipment, and when it is placed in service the latter part of September of this year, all local and rural telephone users served from Frankfort, Mokena and New Lenox will dial their numbers in much the same manner as subscribers dial in Joliet.

New dial telephone will replace the present magneto type instruments and the familiar battery associated with the present telephone will disappear, since the electric current for operating the new system will be supplied by a single large battery in the central office. The present method of calling central by turning a crank will also be discontinued.

The new "Community Dial" system is in successful operation in a number of places in nearby communities and throughout the country. It insures the very best grade of service—local, rural and long distance, and works with uniform efficiency twenty-four hours a day.

Under the new plan every telephone number will have four figure and all numbers in the Frankfort, Mokena and New Lenox exchanges both local and rural, will be changed accordingly. As the rural lines will also have four digit numbers they will be dialed in the same manner as local numbers. Ringing will be automatic and when a telephone is called its bell will continue to ring intermittently until the telephone is answered or the calling party hangs up.

Long distance connections will be handled by the Joliet operators as at present. Business matters will be handled through the Company's business office in Joliet, which subscribers may reach without charge from any telephone in Frankfort, Mokena and New Lenox by dialing the operator and asking for the "business office." Arrangements will be made whereby bills may be paid locally. Maintenance of the lines, repairs when needed and installation of telephones will be handled in the same manner as at present.

A LIVE WIRE ASSO.

That the Mokena Civic Association is a live wire body was attested at the meeting of this group Monday night in the Immanuel Lutheran church parlors.

Arthur Schoop made a report on the four high school project which the association is backing. He stated a meeting will be held within a few days with county supt. of schools Louis Bottino of Will County, the Mokena school board and the Civic Association committee to consider further discussion and plans for a four year high school.

A report was made on the offer of Clarence Werner local hardware dealer regarding the establishment of a croquet ground and horse shoe pitching court on his lot. A site on the school grounds is also under consideration and the matter was left to the committee to recommend the best location.

The Civic Association also passed a resolution backing up the Mokena Village Board in their endeavors to pass a zoning and building ordinance to safeguard the future of Mokena property owners.

The immunizing program to be carried out at the Mokena school on April 3rd and 24th was also discussed.

The gravel which has been placed between the tracks in front of the Rock Island depot in Mokena was brought about thru the efforts of President R. A. Bechstein after several women had near accidents and one did fall as a result of the high step from the steps of the coaches.

A plea was also made for work for the Boy Scouts this summer so they can earn their uniforms and other needed equipment. A letter is to be mailed out to all the residents of Mokena asking them to consider the Boy Scouts this spring and summer when they have jobs to do about the homes such as mowing lawns, cleaning up, etc.

The Association agreed to pay the Boy Scouts for planting 15 trees for the Mokena Garden Club on the old school yard site in the east end of the town.

Friends Extend Sympathy To Senator and Mrs. Barr

The many friends of Senator and Mrs. R. J. Barr in the eastern part of Will County were very sorry to hear of their misfortune in the loss of their beautiful home at Cherry Hill by fire last week end. All the priceless paintings, mementos and furnishings were destroyed.

There Was a Way, And Lass Knew It!

TWO people were walking along a road together. One was a young woman, the other a handsome farm lad. The farm lad was carrying a large pail on his back, holding a chicken in one hand, a cane in the other, and leading a goat. They came to a dark lane.

Said the girl: "I'm afraid to walk here with you. You might try to kiss me."

Said the farm lad: "You need not be afraid. How could I kiss you with all this I'm carrying?"

"Well, you might stick the cane in the ground, tie the goat to it, and put the chicken under the pail," was the ready reply.

THIS SEASON BRINGS EGGS AND MORE EGGS

(See Recipes Below)

For an Easter Feast

The Easter season brings eggs and more eggs to the tables of the whole world, it seems. There are tinted eggs, eggs with dainty and intricate patterns adorning their glossy shells, and eggs decked out to look like Easter bunnies.

Eggs may be decorated, too, with gaily colored stickers—and if you're clever with your fingers, you can make a giddy blonde or demure brunette egg, sporting a new Easter bonnet! Use bright blue round stickers for eyes, and a tiny gummed heart for a mouth. Or, if you like, paint in the features, and tint the "cheeks" with ordinary water color paints. Cotton or fringed crepe paper may be glued on to resemble hair, and an Easter bonnet is made from a tiny paper nutcup, bits of colored paper, and a tiny feather or artificial flower.

When the bunny comes around with his gift of eggs, keep him as a guest at your Easter table. He'll be a delight to children and grownups alike if his basket is filled with candy eggs that the children themselves can eat.

But Easter Sunday demands more than eggs in the way of food! It's a day of feasting and most of us plan and plot for weeks ahead to give the family a truly delicious and unusual meal. Leg of lamb or baked ham are the traditional foods around which most of us plan our Easter menus. Either may be used in the menu below, to excellent advantage.

Broiled Grapefruit halves
Roast Leg of Lamb or Baked Ham
New Potatoes With Parsley
Asparagus
Spring Salad
Hot Rolls Butter
Boston Cream Pie

You'll find another Easter menu and additional recipes, too, in my cook book "Easy Entertaining."

Boston Cream Pie.

½ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs (well beaten)
1½ cups cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add eggs. Mix and sift all dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk and vanilla extract, beginning and ending with the flour mixture. Bake in 2 well-greased layer-cake pans in moderate hot oven (365 degrees Fahrenheit) for 20 to 25 minutes. When cool, put together with Boston cream pie filling and sprinkle top with powdered sugar.

Boston Cream Pie Filling.

¾ cup sugar
¾ cup bread flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups scalded milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Mix all dry ingredients and add scalded milk gradually. Cook 10 minutes in top of double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add eggs and cook one minute longer. Cool and add extract.

Broiled Grapefruit.

Select thin skinned, juicy fruit, cut in halves and remove the pithy centers and rib sections. In the center of each half, place half a teaspoon of butter and 1 teaspoon of brown sugar. Broil until the grapefruit is heated through.

Roast Leg of Lamb.

(Serves 12)
1 leg of lamb
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Wipe leg of lamb with damp cloth and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place, skin side down and cut surface up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Roast in a slow oven (300 degrees), allowing 35 minutes per pound. Remove to hot platter and garnish with pineapple rings and fresh mint, or with orange cups filled with mint jelly.

Current-Mint Sauce for Lamb.

1 cup currant jelly
2 tablespoons fresh mint (chopped)
Melt jelly over very low heat, then bring to boiling point. Remove from heat and stir in the chopped mint.

Fresh Asparagus With Lemon Butter Sauce.

(4 servings)
2 small bunches fresh (or 1 large bunch) asparagus
5 cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cut off lower parts of asparagus stalks as far down as they will snap. Discard, or use in soup. Tie stalks together loosely in a bundle and place upright in saucepan containing the boiling water to which salt has been added. Cook, uncovered, until ends of stalks begin to be tender, about 15 minutes; then lay bunch of asparagus flat in pan and continue cooking until tips are tender, 5 to 10 minutes. Then drain. Cream butter and add lemon juice slowly. Pour this mixture over hot asparagus and serve at once.

Magic Easter Eggs.

¾ cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted confectioners' (4X) sugar (about)

Blend sweetened condensed milk and vanilla. Add confectioners' sugar gradually and continue mixing until smooth and creamy. Divide into three or four parts. Color with different vegetable colorings in very light tints—pink, green, yellow. Form into eggs. One end of each egg may be dipped into melted chocolate that has been allowed to cool. Makes eight eggs 1½ inches long.

When dipping candy eggs, melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler, but do not let the water boil. When melted, remove from heat, and let the chocolate cool to about 83 degrees Fahrenheit, a temperature slightly cooler than lukewarm.

Baked Ham.

1 whole ham
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1½ cups sweet cider
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup orange juice

Wipe ham with a damp cloth and place in an uncovered roaster, skin side up. Roast in a very low oven (300 degrees) allowing 25 minutes per pound of ham. About ½ hour before ham has finished baking, take from oven. Remove skin and pour off all excess fat. Cook cider and sugar together to thick syrup stage. Add orange juice and pour mixture over ham. Dot with whole cloves. Return to oven and bake one hour longer, basting frequently with liquid in pan.

Pardners

By WILL RYAN

(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SIERRA PETE stood as if turned to stone, his eyes fixed on a yellow line zigzagging along the side of the gulch. Shutting his eyes tight, Sierra Pete argued with himself.

"Nope!" he growled. "It ain't there. The sun's got me at last. It ain't gold. It's nothin' but a myrridge."

But when he opened his eyes the yellow streak was still there. Picking up a loose stone, he chipped off a fragment of the yellow outcropping.

"Gold!" he quavered. "Millions in that vein. Pecos Sam and me is rich. We can ride in our own limmyzine and eat alligator pears every day of our lives. We can—oh, Gosh, what can't we do? And ten minutes ago we was jest a pair of lean old desert rats with nothin' but a jackass and a grubstake between us."

He paused, overcome for the moment. Something wet trickled down his wrinkled cheeks. He brushed it away wrathfully.

"Bawlin'!" he ejaculated. "A great time to bawl now, with all that gold in sight. You'd order be kickin' up your heels like a yearlin' colt."

But his hobnailed boots performed no erratic capers, as he trudged back to camp, where Pecos Sam was frying flapjacks over a mesquite fire. At his elbow, Music, the burro, waited hopefully. When Pecos Sam passed him a spoonful of the dough, he lapped it up like a dog.

"Git out now!" admonished Pecos Sam. "Go and rustle your supper."

Where Sierra Pete was long and lank with vertical wrinkles, Pecos Sam was squat and bowlegged with wrinkles of the horizontal variety, and now, as he saw Pete returning to camp, the wrinkles crumpled in a welcoming grin.

"Jumpin' horn toads!" he exclaimed. "Where you been, Pete? You look like you'd seen a ghost."

"Go look in that gulch jest below the mesa, and you'll see the same ghost," said Sierra Pete. "I'll tend to the flapjacks."

When Pecos Sam returned, he was wiping the perspiration from his forehead with a grimy bandana, and his eyes held a strange dazed look.

"Looks like it was the end of the trail for us, Pete," he observed.

"Pears that way," replied Sierra Pete, with equal gravity.

"Reckon the street lights will be as bright as them stars and that moon?" Pecos Sam asked.

Sierra Pete scowled. "Ask me suthin' easy," he grumbled. "I ain't stayed overnight in a town for twenty years."

"I can beat that," Pecos Pete was frankly triumphant. "It's twenty-five years since I slept anywhere but under the stars."

"And fifteen of them years we've been together," remarked Sierra Pete. "Fifteen! They ain't been so bad have they, Pard?"

"Nope," returned Pecos Sam thoughtfully. "They've been purty to'able."

"That's some things gold can't buy," mused Sierra Pete.

"A few," agreed Pecos Sam. "Reckon I'd better draw a map of this here place," he added. "That gulch is a ter'ble hard place to find."

Rummaging out the stub of a lead pencil and a piece of paper that had somehow escaped destruction, Pecos Sam drew a map that satisfied himself. Folding it up, he placed it in the inside pocket of his coat.

"Reckon that'll do," he decided.

The next morning the partners staked out their claim. They talked little on their way to town to record it. Pecos Sam was grimly silent and Sierra Pete was snappish. One on either side of Music, they plodded along.

On the third day a sandstorm held them up. There was nothing to do but camp, and when at last the partners awoke to find the sky gloriously blue and the sun shining, their grouchy mood had passed, and they joked and laughed like boys.

Pecos Sam was getting breakfast, when he gave a sudden yell. "Pete! Come here quick. The map's gone!" he roared. "I jest left my coat on the ground a minute and that durned Music nosed out the map. Pete, he's chewed up our gold mine, sure as blazes. It'll mebbe take years to find that gulch ag'in, now the storm has covered our tracks."

Sierra Pete glared at Music. He had his own private opinion as to how Music had found that map.

"The pie-eyed son of a mountain jackass!" he snorted. "You hadn't order left your coat on the ground that way. You might have knowed the critter couldn't tell a map of a gold mine from a pickle recipe. Now we got to start all over ag'in to look up our gold mine. But if we found it once, we can find it ag'in."

"Anyhow, we got all the rest of our lives to look for it," said Pecos Sam.

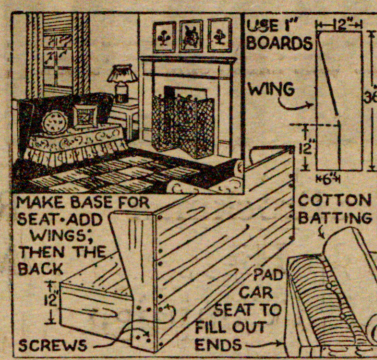

Sierra Pete scratched his bristling chin meditatively. "So we're jest a couple of desert rats ag'in," he commented. "And pardners!"

His hand went out and met Pecos Sam's in a close grip. Two pairs of old eyes looked deep into each other, and two old hearts beat in a complete rhythm of understanding.

"And pardners," repeated Pecos Sam.

Giant Hailstones

We all know the man who talks about hailstones "as big as your fist," but at Potter, Texas, there fell a hailstone that measured 17 inches in circumference. Even this is by no means a record, for the biggest measured hailstone was 9¾ by 5½ by 4½ inches.

Some yarns about hailstones take a lot of swallowing, but in Africa and India there are exceptionally heavy falls. In 1936 the Transvaal was hit by a hailstorm and in half an hour the countryside was three feet deep in hail. Cows and men surprised in the open had their skulls shattered, and thousands of acres of crops were destroyed.

BRIDAL SHOWER

The home of Mrs. Rudolph Meyer at Homewood was the setting of a lovely bridal shower Thursday evening at 7:15 when about fifty guests gathered there to surprise Miss Edna Bramstaedt, who will become the bride of Mr. Elmer Hunstock on Easter Sunday at 3:00 p. m., in St. John's Lutheran church at Cooper's Grove.

The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts and after opening and admiring them and after playing a game of buncle, the guests were ushered into the basement, where a long table was loaded with favors and refreshments. It was a sight to behold. Mrs. R. Meyer and Mrs. W. Killmer, sisters of the bride-to-be were hostesses. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the young couple long and happy life.

The Tinley Park Band Parent's association is sponsoring a home-talent show entitled, "Hill Billy Wedding" which is to be given two nights April 18 and 19.

The regular monthly meeting of the Association will be held Thursday March 28 at 8:00 p. m., in the school. All members are urged to attend and hear the plans for the show. Refreshments will be served.

IN MEMORIAM

ENGELHARDT—Sophia, In memory of our dear mother who passed away April 2, 1935.

Dearest mother you are not forgotten, though on earth you are no more; still in memory you are with us, as you always were before.

CHILDREN AND GRAND-CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Ralph who passed away March 25th, 1939.

We have lost our darling boy and brother.

He has bid us all adieu.

He has gone to live in heaven.

And his form is lost from view.

Oh! That dear boy, how we loved him.

Oh! How hard it was to give him up.

But an angel came down for him

And removed him from our home.

MR. AND MRS. JOE ANDRES.

PERCY AND RUTH JOCHUM.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends, in the departing of our dear uncle, John M. Bettenhausen, who so suddenly departed this earth to that beautiful home in heaven.

Especially do we want to thank James Hickey for all his kindness shown, the Rev. L. E. Weinreich and Rev. J. L. Jochum for their comforting words of faith, also the young ladies for their inspiring songs.

"The record of a generous life runs like a vine around the memory of our dear and every sweet unselfish act, is now a perfumed flower."

MR. AND MRS. FRED H. EHRLICH, EDNA AND ALFRED.

Clarence Bettenhausen has shipped his big dredging machine to Indiana where he has contracted a big dredging job. The huge machine filled two flat cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Andres were turkey dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bettenhausen Palm Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Goldan of Chicago attended the Evangelical church in Mokena Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Soldan and Mrs. Elizabeth Soldan visited at the Conrad Andres home Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Keuch and son Allen of Chicago were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Englehard the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Kohl were Palm Sunday visitors in the Ben Bettenhausen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Young entertained in honor of their daughter Dorothy's confirmation on Palm Sunday. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Julius Sewing and son of Elwood, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mundinger and Mr. and Mrs. Soldan of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mast, Mrs. Edw. Maue and daughter Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schult and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. John Bettenhausen and family of Mokena.

Sunday, March 17, a double birthday celebration took place at the home of Mrs. Florence Feil in honor of her mother, Mrs. L. Henderson a teacher of music and Rob Memhard. The table was decorated with two large fancy birthday cakes. The centerpiece was of Loken roses and purple lilies and favors of all descriptions.

The home was decorated with hyacinths and Easter lilies. The guests were Mrs. Azella Soehle of La Grange, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. White of Markham, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pinkerton of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. P. DeVange and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mason of Tinley Park. The evening was spent opening many lovely gifts, and the playing of games and all left wishing the two birthday folks many happy returns of the day.

The Sewing club met Monday in the home of Mrs. August Mesenbrink with Grandma Hick as hostess.

William Stockman is erecting a new green-house in the front lawn of his residence on Oak Park ave. He expects to keep potted plants in it through out the year.

HOMER

Mrs. Fred Kopleman

Easter services will be observed at the Homer church on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock and Rev. C. E. Wolsted will deliver a sermon, using as his topic "The Light in the Eastern Sky". The Adult and Junior choirs will furnish the special music.

Sunday morning, Palm Sunday was observed with a candle light service, conducted by the Misses Lois Jungles, Betty Hartman, June and Monna Milton. Earl Kopleman furnished the special music, singing "The Old Rugged Cross."

Next Sunday morning, during the Sunday school session, an Easter Thank offering will be taken, which will be used for Christian work in Illinois.

Monday night the Boys 4-H club met in the home of Otto Konow, 7 members and two guests being present. Joseph Brankey gave a talk on "Raising Poultry" and also on "The Dairy Herd." At the close of the business session refreshments were served by Mrs. Konow, assisted by her daughter, Miss Florence.

A group of young people from Lemont chartered Mr. and Mrs. George Blaessing at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schwab. Refreshments were served.

Don't forget the 3 act comedy "Fixin' Aunt Fanny" which will be presented by the Homer Dramatic club at the Goodings Grove Hall on Wednesday evening, March 27th. The same play will be presented on Friday night, March 29th at the Pilgrim Hall in Lockport. There will also be entertainment between acts of the play.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. White, Mrs. Wm. Ross and Charles White motored to Saint Anne, Indiana Sunday to visit at the home of their cousin, Mrs. Sam Hannon who is seriously ill.

Mrs. C. G. Rowley had the misfortune to fall on the icy sidewalks in Lockport Thursday and broke a bone in her left arm. Dr. Talbot of Joliet was called and placed her arm in a cast.

Mrs. Nevalene Hutson spent the week-end with her sister in Chicago. Her sister recently underwent a major operation and is still confined to the hospital.

The Ladies' Missionary Society will hold their March meeting in the home of Mrs. Emma West with Mrs. B. Ingersoll assistant hostess on Thursday, March 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hartman, Jr. and daughter of Midlothian were visitors in Homer Sunday.

Dinner guests Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll were Mr. and Mrs. George Carroll and family of Chicago, E. Carroll, Joanne Jungles and Mrs. Charles Sievert.

Otto Konow and Robert Burch were business visitors at Lyle Sunday.

Wm. Kaspar and daughter Betty were Chicago visitors Tuesday.

Miss Elaine Lindquist of Lockport spent a portion of the week with her friend, Miss Betty Hartman.

The Woman's Club met in the home of Mrs. Ray Myers Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Helen Rowley as co-hostess. Mrs. Freda Whitehead and Mrs. Bertha Bigelow of Lockport and Mrs. George Bush of Joliet were guests. A program followed the business session with Mrs. Fred Trask and Mrs. Ben Brankey in charge. "The Obligation of Duty" was given by Miss Myra Reed. "Our Indian Heritage and Indian Songs and Legends" was given by Mrs. Trask. Mrs. Whitehead the Lockport Township Health Nurse, spoke on her work and duties; Mrs. Bigelow read a paper on "Check Dangers and Fire Hazards". A contest followed on time saving gadgets which proved very amusing and Mrs. Harry Parker won the prize. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Reed Burch and Mrs. H. B. Reed as hostesses.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaagen

Music lovers enjoyed an orchestra concert given by the orchestra of the Joliet Township High School in the High School Friday night. The following local students took part: Georgia Mitchell, Betty Vollrath, Marjorie Hasenjaeger, Katherine Priami, Lucille Topp, Jeanette Heusner, Glenn and Jeanette Eisenbrandt, Donald Carroll, Roy Ebert and Loretta Reimers.

Friends from the First Lutheran Church of Joliet surprised Jeanette Eisenbrandt with a birthday party on March 8th. Those present beside the guest of honor were: Beatrice Smolich, Edna Mae Gunchin, Johnnah Geske, Ray Meader, Emil Meader, Harold Weiske and Howard Eisenbrandt.

Last Saturday, Mr. John Topp celebrated his fifty-third birthday by entertaining his relatives in his home. Pinochle was played at four tables and awards went to: Robert Burmeister, Wilbur Topp, Mrs. Otto Burmeister and Evelyn Dietrich. A mid-night luncheon was served and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Miss Lola Scheer was honored on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scheer in their home, when they entertained relatives and a number of friends to celebrate her birthday which was Sunday, March 17. Decorations were in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. Pinochle was the entertainment. A luncheon was served and the place cards contained the announcement of the marriage of Miss Lola Scheer to Mr. Orville Schroeder which will take place on April 27, 1940.

The Frankfort Girls Basketball team defeated the Minooka girls in Minooka on Friday night.

Mrs. Helen Gullikson is very ill in her home. Her children are caring for her.

Mr. Lawrence Woodman has returned from the Chicago Hospital where he spent a long time receiving treatment on his foot.

The former street car company has sold the old bridge at Summit Hill west of Frankfort. This structure was built in 1909 and 1910 and was used to cross the Michigan Central railroad tracks. A Chicago corporation is busy taking it down.

Mr. and Mrs. George Waldvogel and family have moved to the former Schroth home and the Bogda family who lived there moved to the mushroom factory where living quarters were built.

The annual confirmation services held in St. Peter's church were well attended. Shirley Schmuhl was not able to be confirmed on Sunday but is on the way to health. In the evening service the oldest confirmant of St. Peter's was Mr. John Hansen. He was presented with a beautiful bouquet by the class of 1940. The picture "Beyond Our Horizon" contained a very fitting lesson in connection with the day.

The students of Joliet Township high school will enjoy a vacation on March 22 and ending April 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warning entertained relatives on Sunday, March 17 to a dinner in honor of their son, Dale, who was confirmed.

A "Jungle Supper" will be given on March 27 in the social room of the Methodist church. It is sponsored by the Ladies' Aid and in order to know just what is served you must be able to read jungle language. This is a real task, so be there any time from 6 to 7:30 and you will know just what it consists of. Mrs. Malek will be the speaker in the evening.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will hold their annual Sunrise service Easter morn March 24 at 6:30. Breakfast will be served at 7:00. Come and bring your friends.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's church will have their regular devotional and business meeting on March 28 at 2 p. m. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Loren Sass presided over the business session. Mrs. Mervin Moore, program chairman, read a poem, "Pioneer Lore," written by Mrs. Bess Bush, the club president. The following numbers made up the program: Will county history by Mrs. Francis Nelson; Interpreter of the Timid Soul, Mrs. Russell Lauffer; Health by Subscription, Mrs. Jesse Marshall; Home Safety and Fire Prevention, Mrs. John Riley; Brighten the Corner, Mrs. Walter Haas. Following a social hour refreshments were served by the hostess. The April meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Jesse Marshall, with Mrs. A. J. Cleveland as assisting hostess.

Mrs. Frank Speiker underwent a major operation in the Silver Cross hospital last Wednesday. She is getting along nicely.

Lois Sproat was a guest Saturday night of Jeanne Frazer.

Miss Ethel Manley, Manley Dibble of Oswego and Miss Audrey Reeves, of Aurora were guests Sunday afternoon in the George B. Peterson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bethel, New Lenox, spent Sunday afternoon in the Edwin Bormet home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hull, Chicago Heights, are vacationing in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Coe have been ill in their home.

Special services will be held on Easter Sunday in the Marley Sunday school and church. Rev. Titus will deliver the sermon.

Miss Jeanne Frazer spent several days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Lauffer in Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. John Honosky of New Lenox were entertained at dinner Sunday in the Edwin Bormet home.

Mrs. Oscar Kase and Mrs. Ruby

the Wright Woods home.

Goodear spent Sunday afternoon in Mrs. Wilbur Rapson and daughter Beverly of New Lenox were entertained in the A. R. Kercheval home Sunday.

D. L. Crandall of Chicago and Louis Deidenkopf of Worth visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sproat last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Moore entertained at a six o'clock dinner Friday night. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eaton of Balboa, Canal Zone, Panama; Mrs. Ernest Eaton and son Robert of Joliet; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cleveland and Mrs. Jesse Marshall. After the dinner they all spent the evening in the Jesse Marshall home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cleveland spent Friday in Chicago with Mr. and Mrs. Chris Battenhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kercheval entertained several friends at a dinner and card party Saturday night. A four course dinner was served at 7 o'clock. 500 was played and prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Francis and W. W. Sine and Mrs. Harlow Gougar. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Harold Francis of Manhattan, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Gougar, son Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sine, New Lenox and Miss Lois Sproat.

Rev. Mr. Titus will be the speaker at the Marley Sunday Evening Club Sunday night at 7:30. His subject will be on his native land, Nova Scotia. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mundt of Harvey and Mr. and Mrs. Wray Varley and two sons of Aurora, were entertained Sunday in the Mervin Moore home.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lauffer and friends are grieving the loss of Mrs. Lauffer's brother-in-law, Robert Boland who passed away suddenly Friday night in his home in Lockport at the age of 45 years. He was a very prosperous man and was very well liked by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife, Irene; one brother, Charles; three sisters, Mrs. Roy Crabb, Mrs. Raymond Webb of Cleveland, Ohio and Mrs. John Conway of Joliet. The body was removed to the Sonntag Funeral Home in Joliet where services were held on Monday at 9 a. m., and at the St. Dennis church, Lockport at 9:30 a. m. He was laid to rest in the Calvary cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lauffer will entertain the Marley Sunday Evening Club in their home Saturday night, March 30th. This will be an April Fool's party.

Mr. and Mrs. Vince Barney of Chicago, spent Sunday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lauffer.

Guests of Mrs. Minnie Sproat on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Perry and Molly Crandall of Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. John Handorf visited Sunday afternoon in the Henry Beckwith home in Worth.

MOKENA

Mrs. Henry Stellwagon and her brother, Mr. Alfred Hatch, in company with her sister from Joliet, motored to Champaign Sunday to visit with her nephew who is attending the university.

Last Sunday the Mokena Alumni Basketball teams played the Homewood teams in the Mokena gym. Both the Mokena lights and heavies were victorious, the lights winning by a score of 39-37 and the heavies by a score of 83-43.

A huge picture of Dwight H. Green, Republican candidate for Governor has been placed in the window of the vacant store room in the building occupied by the George Bennett family on Front Street.

A number of Mokena basketball fans attended the game Sunday in Tinley Park in which the Ozark Hill Billies girls team played.

C. Koehler of Homer is remodeling the former Semmler home on Niethammer street which he purchased last year.

The Eno Card Club met with Mrs. August Pfleger last Wednesday. A lovely luncheon was served. Later prizes were awarded to Mrs. P. Mancke, Mrs. Jungles and Mrs. A. Lauffer.

Herbert Bruns returned home last Tuesday from the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights. He is suffering from an infection. While he is improving nicely, he is still confined to bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Immanuel Marti entertained the following guests on Sunday in honor of their daughter Marjorie's confirmation: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beagley, Jr., of Peoria. Mr. Wm. Beagley, Sr., of Orland. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell and family of Palos Park, Mrs. Caroline Marti, Mrs. Donald Maue, and son Duain James, Milton Woodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lowe and daughter Ruth, Mrs. Bernice and Norma Jean Simpson. At the same time the birth day of Mrs. Gordon Powell, sister of Mrs. Marti was recognized. A large cake bedecked in green in keeping with the 17th of March, centered the table.

Mrs. Bert Spiess spent several days last week in Chicago in the home of her son Howard who is ill.

Tom Moore suffered a broken leg in a fall down the stairs at the American Legion Hall in Joliet last week. He is in the Brannon Hospital in Manhattan.

The Home Bureau met with Mrs. Orville Hohenstein Tuesday, March 19. Mrs. George Eisenbrandt presided at the meeting. Members responded to roll call with suggestions for summer storage of winter clothing and blankets, etc.

Mrs. William Lister, Mrs. Raymond Lister and Mrs. Erma Cappei joined the unit at this meeting. The members voted to give a public card party Friday, April 12th. The committee in charge are Mrs. Ervin Marti, Mrs. Harold Schuldt and Mrs. Milton Geuther. Further details will be announced later.

Mrs. Orville Hohenstein gave an interesting talk on re-arranging kitchens to add to the convenience of the housewife and led an interesting discussion on re-arranging the kitchens of members from previously prepared floor plans.

Mrs. Clarence Schroth discussed table setting and meal service with particular emphasis on linens. Mrs. Schroth displayed and discussed the merits of several styles of linen napkins, and cloths.

MOKENA BOY SCOUT NEWS

The weekly meeting of the Mokena Boy Scouts Troop 40 was called to order by assistant scoutmaster Ervin Howes Monday night.

Gordon Spiess led the scouts in the scout oath after which Hobert Meyers, Bat patrol Leader led the scouts in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, roll call was taken.

The boys were then given some pointers on second class first aid by Hobert Meyer and David Rabinov.

After the first aid the scouts took a long hike north of town after which the meeting was closed at 9:30.

The scouts are planning to take an active part in this year's Mokena Clean-up campaign and are hoping to obtain the co-operation of the entire town in this endeavor. Full particulars will appear in this column next week.

Our troop will also spend a part of their spring vacation planting trees for the Garden Club on the old school house grounds and also dressing up our camp grounds south of Mokena on Wolf Road.

PTA LAST MINUTE NOTES
Well parents, you did yourselves proud Tuesday night. Now that you have paved the way to the PTA won't you follow it every month and have a good time with us? What did all the parents of the children in Mrs. Ferguson's room do, band together to take the trophy away from Miss Shure's room? Well they certainly turned out 100%. Good work!

Now we know that some of you were disappointed that the main speaker of the evening was unavoidably detained, but don't you think the music those twenty mothers from the A. O. Marshall school in Joliet brought us made up for it?

These mothers really enjoy good music, and in January of this year banded together to not only enjoy themselves, but to be a credit to their school and community. The "Mother's Chorus" was directed by Mrs. Gordon Mauer and accompanied by Mrs. Roy Hedstrom. We want to tell those who could not attend, that never have we heard a finer group of women whose voices blended so well, and with such emphasis in such a short time of practice and bring her "Chorus" back to Mokena at some future date.

The parents were given the privilege to inspect the school rooms after the business meeting came to a close to see what the individual grades were accomplishing. This tour of inspection which came as a surprise of the evening, brought a good deal of pleasure to the parents that had never visited the school before. The social hour which was indeed a pleasant one was arranged by our four hostesses of the evening, Mrs. Needham, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Steele and Mrs. Reid, Manke.

Mrs. Fred Rauch, Pub. Chmn.

Josiah Treharne in Race for Clerk of Circuit Court

Josiah Treharne was born in Braidwood, Will County 54 years ago, moving to Joliet early in 1904 where he became employed by the Illinois Steel Mill until 1912. The last years as foreman of the Rod Mill.

In February of 1912 Mr. Treharne entered in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Mr. Treharne served three years as a member of the City School Board during the biggest building program that the board has ever had.

Josiah Treharne is prominent in community affairs and assists in every movement that has for the betterment of the community. In 1912 he assisted in the organization of the Isaak Walton League and has held various offices in the local chapter ever since, having served five terms as president, two terms as president of the state division. Mr. Treharne was appointed by Governor Emmerson, a member of the advisory board of the Department of Conservation also a member of the State Planning Commission. In 1930 he was honored by being appointed as honorary member of the Biological Survey of the United States in this area. Mr. Treharne's candidacy for the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court of Will County, subject to the April primary is being received most enthusiastically. The votes of the citizenry are demanding honest, businesslike administration and Mr. Treharne is qualified to render such service.

'Tommy the Cork' Marries Secretary Who (Like All Girls) Once Feared Him

By DREW PEARSON and
ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Copyright, United Features Syndicate, Inc.
Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON.—This is the story of a lovely symbol of the modern Girl Friday—Peggy Dowd, who a few days ago married her brain-truster boss, Tommy Corcoran, and thereby brought to many persons in and out of Washington a breathing spell for as long as she can keep him away on their honeymoon.

It's a romance as colorful as the eventual career of the curly-haired bridegroom.

In Washington, Peggy Dowd is always associated with the brain-trust. But long before there was a brain-trust or the world had ever heard of Tommy Corcoran, Peggy Dowd was holding down an important job. She was the personal secretary of one of the big men of the Hoover administration, Gardner Cowles, owner of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and director of the RFC.

She Liked Midshipmen, Until—

It was a very pleasant job and Peggy thought her boss was a grand man. But her only interest in government was prom-hopping with dashing Annapolis midshipmen.

About this time there came to the RFC a young lawyer as Irish as herself. Peggy would see him now and then rushing along the corridors, but she never talked to him, for it was rumored in RFC feminine circles that he thoroughly disliked women, thought they had been put on earth only to get in the way of men's work.

Girls frankly were afraid to work for Tom Corcoran. He had come down to Washington from a big Wall Street law firm, and just could not get used to the deliberate civil service ways of government. He considered dictating to a shorthand book a waste of time, insisted that his secretary "take it down" on the typewriter as he talked—and he talked a blue streak.

Tommy Was a Tough One.

He also had a lot of crazy ideas about short-cuts through the telephone. He didn't care how big his phone bills were so long as they saved time. And around him he had a crowd of young fellows out of Harvard law school who were just as wild as he was and who, like him, telephoned all day and dictated all night.

Secretaries came to his office and departed like the days. None ever stayed longer than a week. There was a ladies' room legend, which persisted though Corcoran denied it, that he had once jerked a phone right out of its socket and tossed it at a secretary who insisted on going home at three o'clock in the morning. His constant cry to the head stenographer was for a male secretary.

The morning after Director Cowles, Peggy's boss, resigned and left for Iowa, the head stenographer, faced with her daily headache of finding a secretary for Corcoran (she called it the "suicide assignment"), summoned Peggy Dowd and said gently, "Report, please, to Mr. Corcoran."

"Oh, no," said Peggy, "not me. There are other jobs in this world."

"For my sake, please try it for a few days," pleaded the head stenog-

BRIDE AND GROOM—Thomas G. Corcoran, No. 1 "brain-truster," poses with his bride and former secretary, Peggy Dowd, following their surprise marriage at Leesburg, Va. Peggy feared him (and what secretary didn't!) until each discovered the other was also Irish.

rapher. "After all, he's Irish and you're Irish and you can handle him if anyone can. Just don't argue with him. Let him do things the way he wants to, even if they do seem crazy. Who knows, perhaps there is a method in his madness."

So Peggy went up to the lion's den. In a short while Corcoran's buzzer rang and Peggy went in.

"Get this telegram off right away," he ordered, without looking up or giving her time to sit down. Then for two minutes he reeled off a long wire so fast that Peggy didn't even get the start of it. For a few moments she stood there helpless; then, with a jerk of her head, she started for the door to tell the head stenographer it was "no go."

The Day Is Saved.

As Peggy turned, there burst into the room one of the Harvard law school boys, J. Raburn ("Food") Monroe, now a successful New Orleans lawyer and a power in the new anti-Long group, who flashed a telegram before Corcoran.

"That changes everything," Corcoran shouted to Peggy. "Kill that wire I just gave you."

So Peggy just walked back to her desk, pretending she had the wire but was not going to send it. The fortuitous interruption had saved her. And today Peggy has one extra name among her patron saints. The name is St. "Food."

The first crisis thus survived so fortunately, Peggy decided to test her luck further. At seven o'clock that night, Corcoran nonchalantly instructed, "Go out and get something to eat and meet me at the Capitol in the legislative counsel's office at 7:30. We've got a little job to do tonight, won't take more than an hour or so."

It took most of the allotted half hour just to get to the Capitol, but Peggy was there on time. And there she met two other turbines of the brain-trust, Ben Cohen and Jim Landis, later to become SEC chairman and dean of Harvard law school.

Big 'Little Job.'

The "little job" was something about a "securities bill" which had to be ready for a congressional committee the next morning. It was 4 a. m. when she pulled the last sheet out of the typewriter and the three men, after a critical reading, pronounced it "okay."

"Yes," added Corcoran with a cheery smile, "that's a swell job, Miss. What did you say your name was?"

"Margaret Dowd."

"Well, Margaret Dowd, tomorrow morning you tell the head stenographer that I said you'll do."

Thus Peggy Dowd got her start as the Girl Friday of the brain-trust, and began seven years of thrilling work carried on at about the same hectic tempo as her first day. Side by side with Corcoran, Cohen, Landis, Douglas, Jackson, Foley, Rowe, Dempsey, Rogge and others of the "family," she went through the epochal legislative battles of the New Deal—the securities act, the federal housing bill, the fierce TVA clashes, the tremendous holding company fight, the wage-hour bill, the historic Supreme court struggle, the Jackson-Ickes offensive against monopoly.

No More Parties for Peggy.

She was in the thick of them all, always in the background but always on hand, the confidential secretary of these confidential men-at-arms of the President. It meant no parties, no planning for a week or even a day ahead. Every waking hour was devoted to the job. And Peggy thrived under it all.

Whether it was because she and Tom Corcoran were falling in love, Peggy became more and more beautiful. In the last few years she has been conceded to be one of the most beautiful women in Washington.

Exquisitely attired, a honey-colored blonde, with big gray-green eyes ("Vivien Leigh eyes" Corcoran calls them), and a delicate complexion that her favorite pink camellias light up beautifully, she was the prettiest picture in working Washington. At the occasional play they went to, all eyes turned toward Peggy Dowd. But if the onlookers got an eyeful, they never got an earful.

Silent As a Sphinx.

For one of the most amazing things about this very amazing young lady is that, flattered, courted and coaxed by everyone seeking the inside lowdown, no one has ever been known to get anything out of her—except when Tom Corcoran for his own devious purposes wanted something to "get out."

But there was one secret that Peggy did "spill." She whispered it to her mother at the wedding party, just before she and Tom slipped off of town on their skiing honeymoon. It was this: That the last man who kissed her before Tom Corcoran gave her his bridal kiss at the altar of the little church in Leesburg, Va., was the President of the United States.

Note—Peggy will continue to be Corcoran's secretary. Also, the famous Corcoran-Cohen penthouse menage will be continued, occupied by Cohen alone.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Stalemate in house dooms action on new legislation and amendments . . . New Dealers using Ohio defeats as third-term argument . . . Criticism of F. B. I. is history repeating itself.

WASHINGTON.—There is a stalemate on Capitol Hill. In fact the administration decided last session that this session should be just that. The opposition knows all about the decision, but is powerless to do anything about it.

The truth, which was realized before adjournment last summer, is that the administration does not have the votes to put anything new through the house of representatives, and the opposition does not have the votes to repeal any existing law—or for that matter to amend one.

That is the reason there will be no amendments to the national labor relations act this session. Neither those desired by the administration, which are trivial, nor those desired by the opposition, which might be sweeping. And in between these two the amendments desired by the American Federation of Labor will also fall into the discard.

That is the reason there will be no amendments to the wage-hour law—neither the inclusion of other groups, as desired by the White House, nor those intended to eliminate useless bookkeeping both by firms and the government, as desired by the opposition.

The administration can block almost anything it wants to hold up.

The opposition has the same power. It is true that the reciprocal trade agreement making power of the administration will be extended, despite violent opposition. But this cuts across party lines. A great many Republicans favor it. A few Democrats oppose it. Nobody knows, for instance, what the attitude of the Republican candidates for President will be on it. Of the three leading G. O. P. candidates for the nomination, Thomas E. Dewey has not expressed himself, whereas Sen. Robert A. Taft and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg have widely different notions.

Hard to Discover What The Administration Wants

Apparently the biggest battle is over appropriations, but it is by no means so simple to discover what the administration really wants in any of the test votes.

It will be recalled that President Roosevelt, in submitting his budget, called for new taxes calculated to raise $460,000,000. Nobody on Capitol Hill thinks the President actually wants those new taxes before election. They think he actually wants congress to cut $460,000,000 from his budget in order to make them unnecessary.

Obviously it would be next to impossible to get any two people in the country who could go over the whole budget and reach a perfect agreement as to where cuts totaling nearly a half billion dollars should be made. Each would have to yield a little, here and there, in order for the two to approve the result.

But congress is definitely determined that there shall be no new taxes at this session, and it is just as determined that there must be drastic enough cuts in the budget to prevent the necessity of boosting that forty-five billion dollar debt limit before election.

Using Defeats in Ohio

As Third Term Argument

Talk about turning defeat into victory—those Ohio Roosevelt men are really making history!

They are turning a crushing New Deal defeat in two Ohio congressional districts into the best argument they have found yet why President Roosevelt must run for another term. One point of their bitter criticism of Gov. John W. Bricker for calling the special elections is now turned on to show their Democratic brethren, in other states as well as Ohio, why Roosevelt must "sacrifice" himself and endure four more years in the White House.

Their attack on Bricker was two-barreled—first, that it subjected the state treasury to a heavy expenditure, about $170,000 and second, that it forced a vote at a time when there were no national or state-wide candidates to bring the vote out, and hence gave the Republicans an advantage.

It is this second point which they have been talking ever since. "In November," they are saying to anti-third termers, "unless we have Roosevelt on the ticket you see what will happen—the Republicans will carry Ohio. If we have Roosevelt on the ticket we will carry the Buckeye state, and if we do the Republicans might as well not make a campaign, for they cannot win without Ohio."

Incidentally it is rather interesting, and the Ohio boys are not overlooking this point either, but Ohio has been on the winning side of every presidential contest for a good many years. Of course it went for its native son, William McKinley, both in 1896 and 1900. It went for Theodore Roosevelt in 1904, for Taft in 1908, and for Woodrow Wilson in 1912.

Seems to Fit in With

Lewis' Gloomy Comment

Much more important, it went for Wilson in 1916, the last close presidential election, although every state bordering on Ohio, except Kentucky to the south, went for Hughes.

Altogether, the third-term boosters think they have a mighty good argument. Obviously, the G. O. P. victory in the seventeenth congressional district by some 4,500 plurality can be construed only as a sign pointing to a Republican victory in November. The point is that this particular district has gone Democratic in every election since 1928. Most significant, however, is the fact that this district went heavily Democratic in 1938, which is the year Senator Robert A. Taft and Governor Bricker, on the Republican ticket, swept the state.

Projection of this curve, as the political analysts would say, would mean that Ohio's 26 electoral votes would go Republican in the presidential election—unless—the "magic name of Roosevelt" is on the ballot.

Incidentally, what is worrying some of the New Dealers no little is that this pair of elections in Ohio, in each of which the Republicans did better than in 1938, when they carried the state, fits in with John L. Lewis' gloomy comment that Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey are all set to go Republican unless there is some new hope given to the country by the Democrats.

Criticism of F. B. I. Is

History Repeating Itself

After what the British called a "good press" for all these years, a turning in the lane is to be detected with regard to the Federal Bureau of Investigation—to wit the G-men of J. Edgar Hoover.

Criticism is beginning to appear in newspaper editorials, and on the floor of the house and senate. Significantly enough, the first bit of open criticism on the floor of the senate came from Senator George W. Norris, who hung the label "Ogpu" so close to the neck of this outfit that it provoked no smiles at the department of justice.

In a way it is history repeating itself. Back in the reign of the first Roosevelt there grew up a suspicion on Capitol Hill that Theodore was using the secret service to get dirt on individual senators and representatives, presumably to provide a further argument, when such gentlemen should be called on the White House carpet, to persuade them to vote "right."

This naturally aroused a good deal of indignation. In fact, so strongly did the legislators object to being shadowed that they wrote a restriction into the next appropriation bill providing that the secret service operatives should in the future have just two functions, and only two. These were the detection of counterfeiting and the physical protection of the President of the United States.

It was years later, in the Harding administration, that the next shudders ran through Capitol Hill. This time, instead of the treasury secret service, it was the department of justice which was accused of digging up dirt on congressmen. The particular instance was that Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, wishing to hamstring Senator Burton K. Wheeler, at the time pressing an investigation of Daugherty, put some of his sleuths on the Montana senator's trail.

But while this proved a grand talking point for the critics of Daugherty—and incidentally for the defenders of Wheeler—it did not result in any legislative action.

F. B. I. Chiefs Activities

In Florida Seen Unfortunate

It is unfortunate in many respects for J. Edgar Hoover that his activities led him in certain directions this year. Notably his vice crusade in Florida. The whole point is that it is not regarded as a smart addition to the functions of the federal government—at a time when economy is the watchword and the FBI chief is trying to get more money for his bureau while most other governmental bureaus and agencies are being slashed—to go after gambling, and purely intrastate gambling at that.

The Florida authorities announce every so often that the lid is on—no more casinos. But time passes, and for one reason, or another, or perhaps no reason save loss of interest, gambling in the smart winter colony is resumed.

Just why any one in the government of Florida should care particularly to stop the gyping of wealthy visitors is something else again, but the point is that Florida officials have plenty of power to stop it if they want to.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Cool Foods.—Never put hot foods into the refrigerator. Wait until they have cooled.

If lemons are stored in a covered jar in the refrigerator they will not wither and shrink.

Labor Saver.—Part of the pot and pan washing job can be eliminated by storing frying fat in paper cups which can be discarded when empty.

Candied fruits and raisins for puddings and cakes should be softened by soaking overnight in fruit juice.

Refreshing Taffeta Frock.—If you want to refresh and restiffen a taffeta frock, make a solution of one teaspoonful of borax dissolved completely in half a pint of warm water. Sponge this all over the wrong side of the fabric. When it is nearly dry iron on the wrong side, using a fairly hot iron.

Molasses Sauce.—Here is a delicious topping for hot bread, rice, puddings, and so on. Combine one cup molasses, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon butter and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cook for 15 minutes over low heat while stirring. Serve hot.

Treating New Broom.—If you have bought a new broom you will find it lasts longer if soaked in warm water for a few hours. Shake off as much moisture as possible and hang by the head to dry.

Removing Fish Smell.—A little vinegar and water scalded in the frying pan will take away any smell of fish or onions. Wash the pan afterwards in the ordinary way.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of sleep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Gamelin, Allied War Chieftain, Wears Down Foes by Stalling

PARIS.—Critics of General Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the British-French forces, have wondered why his men have been held in check behind lines instead of attacking the enemy across Germany's famed Westwall.

The answer, say Frenchmen in the "know," is that General Gamelin is playing a waiting game intentionally, having learned from experience that action is too often confused with mere agitation. Whereas Fuehrer Hitler is said to have delayed an attack because his army was not ready after the blitzkrieg in Poland, General Gamelin is merely following the battle tactics he has developed in a lifetime of military experience.

Possessing peculiar qualifications for a military commander, Gamelin spent his youth in water-color sketching. To this day he is a student of philosophy, which, paradoxically, may hold the key to his success.

Criticized in Syrian Campaign.

Best illustration of Gamelin's tactics is found in his conduct of the Syrian uprising in 1925, when he was sent to suppress the Djebel Druses and relieve the besieged French outpost of Soueida. While the French press cried out bitterly, he spent weeks in apparent idleness while more spontaneous generals would have attacked immediately.

Gamelin has run the war so well that he may become the only French general to retain his command throughout a conflict.

Parisians say he reminds them of the famous old General Joffre, World war commander under whom he studied. But they also recall that Gamelin was chiefly responsible for one of the major World war victories generally credited to Joffre.

This happened when Gamelin, as a major in charge of Joffre's military establishment during the battle of the Marne, detected a weakness of the German position, recommended an immediate attack and helped draw up the famous September 4 order. It launched a battle which altered history.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharane of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill. She is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharane. That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust.

Norwood laughed. "Not about, but abed. It's late. However, let's hear Rundhia."

"Yes, please sing," Lynn knew she hadn't even scratched the surface of Norwood's humor. So she felt exasperated.

Rundhia smiled and plucked a chord or two: "Ever hear this one?"

He sang beautifully. His voice was a good tenor, and he handled the guitar with care. He avoided Norwood's eyes. He sang to Lynn.

The words meant nothing to her, but she couldn't fail to perceive the passion suggested by the B-flat minor melody. At the end of a stanza, Norwood interrupted:

"Damn that stuff, Rundhia! Sing something decent."

Rundhia passed him the guitar. He thought he had him at a disadvantage:

"You sing," he answered. "Perhaps you know something for good little boys and girls. Do you know any hymns?"

Norwood surprised both of them. He took the guitar and changed the tuning, struck some chords at random and then played the thing better than Rundhia could. He felt his way through one air to another, until he found one that suited his mood. Then he trotted out Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay."

He had a fine voice, baritone, and he could whistle the chorus instead of repeating familiar words. It wasn't great art, but it was manly. It was decent. Where there "weren't no Ten Commandments," Norwood plainly had inviolable standards of his own.

"As usual, the Army roars its slogans to the sky," said Rundhia. "I can imagine you in love with a Burmese woman, Norwood. Why not apply for a Rangoon billet?"

"And miss this?" Norwood answered. He was looking at Lynn. "Here's your guitar. Are we going?"

He offered Lynn his arm and she was too astonished to refuse. She hardly knew him, and what she did know had annoyed her. However, she found herself walking beside him with her arm in his, and there was nothing for Rundhia to do but to follow them down the ancient steps until the garden path was wide enough for three abreast. Norwood pressed Lynn's arm to make her listen. He spoke so low that she could hardly hear him:

"The Maharane is a dotard on Rundhia. You can't depend on her for that reason. Leave Kadur the moment your aunt is fit to travel."

"Oh, you can't guess—"

"Yes, I know. I was an orphan. I was raised on stupid discipline and fossilized injustice—Oh, hello, Rundhia, you there? Thought you'd stayed behind to pray or something."

Rundhia was grinding his teeth. He didn't answer.

Lynn took pity on him: "When will you show me the treasure room?"

"When we're alone," Rundhia answered. Then, spitefully: "Ours is one of the few treasures that haven't found their way to London."

"You mean the others were plundered?" Lynn asked.

"Pawed," said Norwood.

After that they walked in silence to the palace front door.

"Good night," said Rundhia pointedly.

Norwood smiled. "I'll ask you to be kind enough to see me to the gate, Rundhia. The guard let me out once tonight. They might think I'm my own ghost if I turn up alone. Miss Harding, you know why the beautiful Indian girls are locked up in zenanas, don't you?"

"Is that a conundrum? No, why?"

"Because good-looking Indian men would be ashamed of 'emself if they couldn't make Casanova look like a mere amateur."

"Are you being rude?"

Rundhia came to her aid: "Excuse him, Lynn! Soldiers fold their tents and leave their girls behind them. They suppose all women are alike. He meant it as a friendly warning not to trust me."

Lynn stood at bay on the palace steps. It was on the tip of her tongue to insult Norwood so thoroughly that he would never presume to speak to her again. She wasn't quite sure he didn't expect that. But she glanced from one man to the other and changed her mind.

"How about a stroll as far as the guesthouse to find out how your aunt is?" Rundhia suggested.

"Thanks, no. There's a phone in my bedroom. I will use that. Good night. Good night, Captain Norwood."

CHAPTER VI

Norwood changed into khaki and followed O'Leary's lantern. O'Leary was nervous, talkative, deliberately disrespectful. Being only one-third Irish, two-thirds of his truculence was assumed, not genuine. However, Norwood understood that.

"Someone," said O'Leary, "must have overheard us talking near the palace gate. I was followed to camp. Heard him. Couldn't see him. We're followed now. They'll take your number down unless you watch out. All you officers believe, because your uniform was made in London, that you've only got to call the police and—"

"Shut up."

"All right, strafe me! That's the Army for you. I'm not Army. I'm an underpaid civilian supernumerary. Sack me if you want to."

O'Leary resumed his discourse: "Then believe this: while you was performing an officer's job wi' a banjo and a beauty, I sat thirsty by the camp-fire, so the smoke 'ud keep the skeeters off me, hoping for one o' my spies to show up. But came along a man I don't know. Crept up surreptitiously. Spoke Punjabi, mispronouncing it. It weren't his right language. Says he: 'How much?'

"My report is likely to carry weight."

"Gave you money?"

"Not one anna! He wanted to know your price to side with the priests against the Maharajah."

"What did you tell him?"

"Nothing."

"What did you do?"

"He was gone too quick. I missed him with the new iron skillet what the cook had stuck to clean itself among the embers. Damned nigh red-hot. If I'd hit him, he'd ha' sizzled. Point is that whoever sent him will be figuring they tried the wrong diplomacy. Next thing, knife or bullet. Dodge 'em and look out for poison. Make the cook taste everything and then bury the cook. From now on, I eat nothing. Even whiskey ain't safe. They can drill and plug the bottle; but it kills more comforting than ground glass or bamboo fiber. The priests know you dined at the palace tonight. They're dead sure the Maharajah greased your palm. Well—there's where the dump is. 'Tain't safe to go closer."

"Wait here," said Norwood.

O'Leary picked up a stick. He shadowed Norwood along the footpath, until Norwood peered beneath the waterfall. He had to stand on a slippery ledge of rock. As O'Leary had foretold, the moon's rays did wanly penetrate, but it was torchlight that revealed the tunnel-mouth. Norwood stood there for several minutes watching spectral figures dump blue clay from baskets, to be carried away by the river.

"Look out!" yelled O'Leary.

Norwood jumped. A living cobra, flung by an unseen hand, struck his face—fell writhing—struck—missed. Norwood almost fell into the pool beneath the waterfall, but O'Leary crashed him, shoved, almost fell in, too, but scrambled—regained his footing—attacked the cobra—beat it with the long stick, slew it.

"Now are you satisfied? Lied to you, did I? Going on in through the hole, or acting sensible? Want to know how it feels to be pitched in the dark down a diamond mine?"

"Back to camp," said Norwood. "Thank you, I'll take whiskey! Watch your step, and watch your Uncle Moses. If I signal, don't call me a liar, duck quick!"

As foster-mother, Aunt Deborah Harding had neglected no detail of Lynn's social education. Whatever Lynn did, she did well. She had been taught to ride perfectly. On one of the Maharajah's thoroughbreds, in the early morning cool, she looked worthy of the splendid animal that she controlled with no visible effort. Lynn, the mystic Indian daybreak and the vigor of her motion through the long mauve shadows, were all one merriment to make a man's eyes widen and his heart leap.

One could recognize Rundhia from a mile off by the way he swung his right arm at the trot, an unconscious habit that it had been nobody's business to tell him about. But Rundhia could ride, too. They were a pair to stop and gaze at.

Lynn seemed to have forgotten the previous night's disagreement. She appeared glad to see Norwood: "What are you doing up so early?"

"The sight of you on horseback is better than sleep," he answered. "I had dreams about you."

"Bad ones?"

"I can't remember. You know how dreams escape you when you wake up."

"Come along for a gallop."

"Can't. Sorry." Looking at Lynn's eyes, thinking about Rundhia, Norwood spoke unguardedly: "My man is signalling—some people waiting for me near the waterfall. I must go. I will call as soon as I can." He looked straight at Rundhia.

It was then that Lynn noticed that Rundhia and Norwood hadn't spoken.

"Should I introduce you?" she suggested, laughing.

Norwood saluted her, wheeled his horse, and rode away, not looking backward. He heard Rundhia laughing.

O'Leary met him by the river, full of self-importance:

"You should send me to Geneva! I'm a diplomat. They're waiting. If you're nice, and no one's looking they may let you see the mine. I convinced 'em that all you're here for is to blow the government's nose. It needs blowing, I told 'em, on account of some sneaky squealing on 'em that their mine isn't safe for laborers, and you're here to muzzle the talk."

"I would like to muzzle you," said Norwood.

"Same as it says in the Bible about muzzling the ox that grinds your corn," O'Leary answered.

Norwood studied him a moment. There was only one way to get the value out of O'Leary. No use making him sulky. Keep him busy.

"Go to the bazaar," he ordered. "Here's some money. Pick up all the palace gossip that's going the rounds."

"I get you! Smell a rat—just smell him and I'll catch him. This isn't much money."

"It's all you're going to get."

"One o' these days," said O'Leary, "I'm going to hire a secretary and take a chance with the Official Secrets Act and dictate my mem-

Labor Organizations Had Early-Day Origin

In reviewing the history of labor unions the Americana points out that organizations of laborers have existed from time immemorial and that the guilds of the Middle Ages were exclusive and monopolistic, caring nothing for other workers. This form appeared among the shoemakers of Massachusetts in 1648, organized mainly to control inferior workmen. Similar organizations in other industries were always local and more or less temporary. The birth of the modern trade union movement may be assigned to the closing years of the Eighteenth century, though it never attained the dignity of a movement until the Nineteenth century was well under way. Famous First Facts gives 1792 as the date for the first local craft union, that of Philadelphia shoemakers. The labor movement grew out of the industrial revolution which brought about a change in the manner and means of production, and so caused a wider separation between master and journeyman. The Americana states that trade unionism reached the "coming out" stage with the organization of the Mechanics Union of Trade Associations at Philadelphia in 1827.

Modern trade unionism in Europe

oires. Page one, I'll tell 'em the Intelligence is run by cheap 'uns. They'd make a Scotchman feel like multiplying loaves and fishes, free for nothing!"

Norwood rode alone along the river bank until the path grew narrow near the waterfall and he could no longer see the huge bulk of the temple, nor even the city wall that followed the curve of the river beyond the dam. He dismounted and hitched his horse to a shrub. The water tumbled innocently, lazily over the dam; there was hardly a hit behind that beautiful curved translucent screen there might be the mouth of a tunnel. The river water was vaguely blue.

There were four men seated near the ledge on which Norwood had nearly lost his life the night before. They stood up, greeting him respectfully. They were Brahmans but not priests; they looked like responsible men of affairs who might, perhaps, be trusted with the financial details of some of the temple business. He plunged straight to his subject:

"One of our Air Force pilots has reported having glimpsed an open opit surrounded by those outlying buildings near the temple area. It's an open secret that the priests have been working a diamond mine for centuries. We have heard the mine is dangerous. I want a secret look at it. Perhaps I can advise you how to make it safe. One other thing: stop dumping clay in the river. Perhaps I can advise what to do about that. As for the dispute about ownership, my party is running a survey line to establish facts. I have seen nothing yet to suggest that the priests are not the rightful owners. If you've any documents, I'd be glad to see them. My report isn't the last word, but it's likely to carry weight."

If Norwood hadn't been thinking about Lynn and Rundhia, he might have noticed that the Brahmans looked a lot too pleased. One of them, pushing past him, slipped a tiny black paper envelope into Norwood's left-hand tunic pocket. He apologized for having brushed against him. Norwood had hardly noticed that he hid.

The four held a whispered consultation. Then their spokesman said, in excellent English, but with a trace too much silk in his voice:

"We appreciate your honor's courtesy. But we are intermediaries, on whom it is incumbent to convey the message to the proper quarter. It shall doubtless have immediate consideration." He paused, then added, as if choosing an innocuous polite phrase: "We know well that your honor's report will have great weight. We hope that your honor's judgment may not be influenced by worthless arguments."

Back in camp, Norwood sat under the tent awning to have his boots polished by his servant, while he gave orders for the day.

"Sergeant Stoddart," he said suddenly. "There's a middle-aged lady in the Maharajah's guesthouse who had a rather bad spill yesterday. Bruises. Perhaps abrasions. Might be complications if she isn't careful. A Bengali doctor is attending her, and you can't always depend on those fellows to use fresh antiseptic."

"I'd be awful sick, before I'd let one of 'em dose me, sir."

"Well, before you go down to the river, take a look in my medicine chest. You'll find a new two-ounce bottle of iodine. I think I'll take it to her. Wrap it up so that it won't break. I'm going to see the Resident."

The American Federation of Labor in August, 1937, claimed a membership of 3,271,726 and the Committee for Industrial Organization in September, 1937, estimated a membership of 3,718,000 in 32 unions; we find no estimate of membership in independent unions.

The oldest known sitdown strike has been traced back to 1565, when journeymen bakers in Lyons, France, struck. The first American sitdown strike is reported to be that of 3,000 General Electric company workers at Schenectady, N. Y., in December, 1906. More recently it was revived first in Akron, Ohio, in 1934.

Europe Uses Most Fertilizer

Consumption of fertilizer in the United States is at the rate of five pounds per acre per farm. Nations of Europe rank far ahead of this country in fertilizer use. Holland uses 99 pounds of chemical plant food per acre annually. Belgium 80 and Germany 67. Then come Denmark with 40, Norway with 29 and Sweden with 22 pounds France uses 21 pounds per acre, Italy 17 and Great Britain 12.

THE SEPULCHER: TRIUMPH OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 27:57—28:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.—I Corinthians 15:20.

The inspiration and spiritual renews of Easter day comes to us again. How thankful every Christian should be for this day of remembrance of our Lord's triumph over death. How much we should praise God that the day for us who are His disciples is not one of outward display but of inward revival. May this Easter bring a real quickening to the Church.

In our series of lessons in Matthew we have followed our Lord in His life and ministry on through Gethsemane to Calvary. Today we find loving hands giving themselves in what they thought to be the final act of devotion to their Lord, and we also see the hands of wicked men active in what they thought was a final act of hatred. Then suddenly the Lord Himself breaks through in resurrection power.

I. Love Is Kind (27:57-61).

The women, whose devotion to their Lord never wavered, were joined in the final act of taking the body of Jesus from the cross and burying it by two secret disciples of the Lord who now came out into the open, Joseph of Arimathea, a member of the Sanhedrin (Luke 23:50, 51), and Nicodemus (John 19:39, 40). It was a courageous act on their part and undoubtedly the expression of their great love for Jesus.

The two Marys seemed to have stayed to watch the grave even after Joseph had gone to his home. The death of Jesus may have crushed their hopes, for they apparently did not recall His promise of resurrection, but they still loved Him. After all, is not that the ultimate and essential mark of a disciple, love for our Lord? Faith may waver, hope deferred may make the heart sick with discouragement, but nevertheless we will follow the example of these disciples and never let our love for Him grow cold. In due season such faithfulness finds a glorious reward.

II. Hatred Is Relentless (27:62-66).

The wicked men who had brought about the crucifixion of Jesus were not content to let their hatred of Him die at the grave. They lusted after His life and they had taken that, but even as He lay silent in the grave, the priests and the Pharisees came to Pilate and called Him "that deceiver" (v. 63) and demanded a special guard. They feared that His disciples would perpetrate a fraud, and after stealing the body declare that He was risen. Wicked and deceitful hearts can imagine all sorts of treachery on the part of others.

The hatred of unbelievers toward Christ and toward His followers knows no stopping place. In civilized lands and among cultured people it operates under a cloak of respectability, but it is none the less bitter and relentless in its pursuit of Him and of His Church.

Observe that while the chief priests and Pharisees acted in hatred and unbelief, they unwittingly did the cause of Christ a great service by demanding the guard over the tomb. They made it forever impossible for any charge of fraud to be successfully made against the truth of the resurrection.

III. Christ Is Triumphant (28:1-6).

Victory and praise should be the keynote of Christianity. Why should we be doleful and sad? Our Lord has come back victorious from the grave! We may be glad and sing even in the midst of earth's sorrows and distresses. Let praise be the employ of our lips constantly as we worship Him and work for Him.

The picture that greeted the surprised eyes of the two women as they came to the grave as it began to dawn on the first day of the week was one resplendent with the glory and majesty of God. The earth quaked as the lightning and white angel of the Lord broke through the unbreakable seal of Rome and rolled back the stone which was to have permanently closed the door to the tomb. This was done, not to release Christ—for He had already gone, no grave could hold Him—but that men might see the empty grave and know that He was risen.

To the foes of Christ represented by the keepers, the coming of the angel and the revelation of the power of God brought absolute discomfiture. That is still true. Men will argue with theology, church methods, even Christian profession, until they see the power of God revealed, and then they can only be "as dead men."

To the friends of Christ the angel brought comfort and assurance. Their fears were assuaged by his word of comfort, and then their faith was revived by the assurance that Christ was risen. The resurrection declares that He is the Son of God with power, the Saviour of the world.

Weak, Tired People Get "New Lease on Life"

Famous doctor's prescription helps build pep, strength and energy in amazing, easy way.

ARE you weak, run-down—appetite poor? Does the slightest effort exhaust you to the point you feel life isn't worth living? This is often Nature's danger signal—and here's sensational news! Mrs. Laura Bond, 899 Cumberland Street, Gloucester City, N. J., writes: "I felt so tired, weak and out-of-sorts. But after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a while, I felt more like eating, had more energy, and felt like myself again."

This great medicine, formulated by a practicing physician, helps you combat that weak, run-down feeling two ways: (1) It stimulates the appetite. (2) It promotes flow of gastric juices. Thus, you eat more; your digestion improves; your body gets greater nourishment, and in this scientific way helps nature build up your pep, energy and resistance.

So successful has Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery been that over 30 million bottles have already been used. Proof of its remarkable benefits. Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from your druggist today. Let it help you feel joyfully alive again—full of pep and energy.
